

---

Introduction

Human Social Rights

Abdelmoeti Abuzaid
The Editor-in-Chief

In the last few years, some organizations that claim to be concerned with human rights have politicized this issue, and some have turned to be mouthpieces with political intentions, being instigated by powers and states in pursuit of their interests through these organizations and their members.

One of the most serious misleading practices of these organizations and mouthpieces is limiting the discussion of human rights to the false allegations of practitioners of terrorism and crime in all forms. Their choice of this group is due to their certainty that public opinion would not be able to verify these allegations easily.

At the same time, these traffickers, in the name of human rights, ignore the real meaning, and the most comprehensive and influential content of human rights on human life, advocated by heavenly religions, stipulated in international and regional charters and constitutionally protected by national constitutions. It is a content related to the human right to life, his social, economic and cultural rights, his rights in a decent life for him and his family, his right to security, work, treatment, education, and social protection when needed. These rights are the most important, lasting, and influential in changing the human life for the better and meeting his needs and aspirations, for himself and his family.

This periodical continues its role in raising awareness on the real scientific content of these rights, so, included in this issue an integrated file on the "social dimensions of human rights", where prominent specialized professors participated with their studies and dealt with topics

Studies in Human Rights

---

on the right to education ,development ,Social protection, health care, etc... These studies viewed the scientific content of each of these rights, pursued it in international and regional covenants and reviewed these rights in the Constitution and Egyptian laws, comparing all that to what has been or is in actual application in Egypt for objective scientific evaluation of the facts and the identification of achievements and deficiencies.

In addition to this file, this periodical includes various studies on the Egyptian judiciary and human rights principles, universal criminal jurisdiction and the principle of complementarity, international human rights NGOs between declared goals and politicization affliction, business in relation to human rights, and a number of diverse reports on human rights, globally, regionally and locally, including the reports of the African Network of National Human Rights Institutions, to be chaired by Egypt at the end of 2019, Egypt and the ratification of the Arab Charter on Human Rights and the European Court of Human Rights.

Hopefully this periodical would help in putting the human rights issues in their right place, and satisfy the readers' interests in Egypt and everywhere.